

FSN Southwest to Provide Delayed Telecast of Last Saturday's Texas A&M-Baylor Football Game

Contributed by Kevin
Monday, 30 October 2006

For Immediate Release

Monday, October 30, 2006 DALLAS- FSN Southwest will show a delayed telecast of last Saturday's Texas A&M-Baylor college football game on Tuesday, Oct. 31 at 8:00 PM CT.

Texas A&M's 31-21 victory over the Bears, which wasn't telecast live, has been designated a "Fox College Sports Big 12 Instant Classic" and will be shown throughout the network's five-state region in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and parts of New Mexico.

The game also will be televised on Fox College Sports as part of that network's weekly "FCS Extra Credit" series that features delayed telecasts of Big 12 football games not aired live on FSN, ABC or TBS. FCS Central will show the game on Tuesday, Oct. 31 at 7:00 PM CT. Fox College Sports is available to digital cable TV customers nationwide on cable systems that carry the network.

The telecast features the Baylor home team radio call with the video feed used for instant replay purposes.

This is the second consecutive week that FSN Southwest has picked up delayed Big 12 Conference telecasts from Fox College Sports. Last week, FSN Southwest showed the Texas A&M-Oklahoma State and Kansas-Baylor games.

From Texas A&M Athletics Page: <http://www.aggieathletics.com/pressRelease.php?PRID=11952>